

From Antijudaism to Contemporary Antisemitism: Continuities and Discontinuities

01.03.2023 | JCR

As part of its non-public consultation on the topic "Antisemitism: What is in a Definition?" the ICCJ offered on February 5, 2023 a public webinar entitled "From Antijudaism to Contemporary Antisemitism: Continuities and Discontinuities". A recording of the webinar is now available.

Speakers are:

Dr Adam Gregerman is Associate Professor of Jewish Studies and Associate Director of the Institute for Jewish-Catholic Relations at Saint Joseph's University in Philadelphia. He is vice-chair of the Council of Centers on Jewish-Christian Relations (CCJR), the ICCJ member organization in the United States, and book review editor of its journal Studies in Christian-Jewish Relations.

Dr Lev Topor is currently an ISGAP Visiting Scholar at the Woolf Institute where he focuses on Critical Antisemitism Studies, Discrimination and Human Rights, a research programme led by the Institute for the Study of Global Antisemitism and Policy (ISGAP). Lev Topor is also a Senior Research Fellow at the Center for Cyber Law and Policy (CCLP) in the University of Haifa and a former Visiting Research Fellow at Yad Vashem in Jerusalem.

Moderator: Liliane Apotheker, ICCJ President
