

Joseph Rabinowitz and the Messianic Movement: The Herzl of Jewish Christianity.

| Kjær-Hanson, Kai

Tr. David Stoner; additions tr. Birger Petterson. (rev. and engl. from orig. Josef Rabinowitsch og den messianske bevægelse. Aarhus, Denmark: Forlaget Kay-Bog, (1988). Edinburg

The life of Joseph Rabinowitz (1837-99) - scion of a distinguished hasidic family, founder of the "Israelites of the New Covenant" Movement in Kishinev, and convert to Christianity on his own terms - is fairly assessed in Kjaer-Hansen's book, although the designation of Rabinowitz as "the Herzl of Jewish Christianity" is a misnomer.