

Sefer - Moscow Center for University teaching of Jewish civilization

Sefer, an academic umbrella organization uniting scholars, young researchers, graduate and undergraduate students of academic Jewish studies from across the FSU. Sefer organizes one-week schools in a number of different regions of important Jewish significance, academic conferences in Jewish studies, publishes several annual academic publications with recently conducted research, sends academics and junior faculty to teach mini-courses at universities across the FSU, and directs Eshnav, a three-week study program at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem for select students and junior faculty.